Speaker Biographies

Linda Brady

Linda is a member of Boeing's Health Care Strategy team, managing their health care analytics and provider network strategy. In her role, Linda manages the overall portfolio of Boeing's Value Based Care (VBC) direct-contracting initiatives, from the initial design/concept, through contract development, implementation and sustainment. She has over 20 years of experience in the health care industry, studied at the University of Illinois and is a Six Sigma Green Belt. Prior to Boeing, she was a consultant at two of the leading health benefits consulting firms, where she advised large complex organizations on their health care benefits strategy, including direct contracting arrangements, TPA integration, ACO implementations and health care analytics.

Michelle Bosworth

Michelle serves as Chief Human Resources Officer for Fort Wayne Community Schools, where she leads district-wide human capital strategy and operations. She brings nearly 20 years of diverse human resources experience spanning healthcare, education, high technology, banking, and manufacturing. Michelle holds multiple professional certifications from the Society for Human Resource Management (SHRM) and the HR Certification Institute (HRCI). She earned a Master of Science in Management from Indiana Wesleyan University and a Bachelor of Science in Human Resources Management from Ball State University. Michelle is the incoming Regional Director for Region 3 of the Indiana Association of School Business Officials and currently participates in Leadership Fort Wayne.

Christan Royer

Christan is the Director of Benefits at Indiana University where she manages employee benefit programs and helps lead university-wide human resource initiatives. Christan has also taught courses on health information management in the School of Informatics at IUPUI. She holds a M.Ed. with a focus on eLearning and a BS in Business Administration, both from the University of Illinois. Christan is a current Board Chair of the Employers' Forum of Indiana.

Candace Shaffer

Candace's commitment to improving the well-being of others is at the core of her professional successes, as well as her personal motivation. In 2014, she began her career in benefits at Purdue University. Since 2017, she has led the university's benefit team and is responsible for the overall strategic and financial approach to Purdue University's and Purdue University Global's benefit packages. This includes health & wellness, leaves, retirement disability, workers compensation and family friendly programs, as well as the systems and customer service processes in place to help employees and their families engage in those programs. Prior to coming to Purdue University, Candace worked in the early care and education profession with several years focusing on children and families at risk, supporting early childhood programs on quality of care and planning statewide early education conferences for professionals. With her education and previous work experience being child development and family studies, her first introduction to benefits from an employer's perspective was when she came to work at Purdue in 2014 as the worksite health and childcare specialist. Once she joined the team, she became more involved in benefit and team projects, leading to being given the opportunity to serve as interim associate director, ultimately leading to her current position as senior director of benefits where she leads a team focused on helping the Purdue community thrive. Candace earned both her bachelor's and master's degrees in child development and family studies from Purdue University. Awarded with Employee Benefits News 'Benefits Leadership in Healthcare' in 2018, Candace's focus on overall employee wellness –behavioral, financial, physical, social and work-life – continues to bring new opportunities to the table, not only for the employee population but also the university.
